

In Camel's Clothing

A second full booklet pane of the Egyptian seal has come to light. It was recently in the stock of Steve Ellis, (BRIDGERKAY@aol.com), who kindly sent scans of it and the accompanying cover.

The Steve Ellis full booklet pane with the narrow "N" variety showing at 4/2 and 4/4.

The SJKGV Handbook suggests that the booklet's cover is an unprinted buff board but this one is clearly blue. It also appears to be printed with "A 9", (nearly the Gibbons designation!), and bears a manuscript "Jubilee".

Asked if the pane was stapled in the cover when he obtained it, Steve said that the pane had come from the booklet because he had removed it. (Whoops!).

Did some of the 270 booklets come bound in different covers? Should this article reach the U.S. or Egyptian owners of the only two reported complete booklets in captivity, (or anyone else who has seen one), perhaps they could email this site with any information that would shed light on the matter.
